A SWEDISH SHOE BRAND, ESTABLISHED 1951

Shoes and boots for all outdoor adventures!

Graninge is a Swedish shoe brand, established as early as 1951. Over the years, the Graninge brand has been carefully managed by L&P Nierenburg, a family-owned company founded in 1968 by Lennart Nierenburg. Later, his son Peter also joined the company. In 1997, Peter took over the operations as a whole, although the founder Lennart Nierenburg carried on working in the company until 2002.

Graninge shoes and boots are adapted to a Scandinavian climate and are designed with high demands on quality, durability and smart functions. Although the finish is often robust, the weight is minimal. Over the years, Graninge boots have been used, loved, and even passed on from one generation to another. The collection includes everything from hiking boots and shoes to hunting boots, work shoes, walking shoes, sneakers and Chelsea boots.

PRODUCTION AND SUSTAINABILITY

Production in Portugal

The models included in the collection "Graninge's classic original models" – Graninge Bred, Graninge Fjäll, Graninge Jokkmokk, and Graninge Hög – are manufactured in Portugal. The factory has undergone a SMETA audit, a globally recognised standard that ensures labour and environmental practices are upheld throughout production and supply chain. The factory also complies with BSCI (Business Social Compliance Initiative), a European collaboration initiative that guarantees fair working conditions, equitable wages, and a safe work environment. The factory's suppliers are certified according to international standards (LWG, REACH, and CADS/GOTS) to ensure high product quality and safety.

The leather used in the production of Graninge's original models is approved by LWG (Leather Working Group), an environmental certification for tanneries. According to this, the material suppliers follow strict environmental guidelines in the tanning process and the leather is vegetable-tanned rather than chrome-tanned. Graninge's original models are made with heel counters and toe caps from recycled materials, and the outsoles are crafted from 100% natural rubber. The wool used in the insulated models is mulesing-free and sourced from Portugal. The shoeboxes are made from recycled materials and certified by the FSC (Forest Stewardship Council) to ensure sustainable forestry. The factory uses the PFAS free and highly water-repellent Aquastop® membrane in Graninge's boots.

Production in Italy

The additional models in the Graninge collection are primarily manufactured in Italy. The factory is certified according to ISO 9001 – an international quality standard that ensures a systematic approach to maintaining high standards throughout the production process. This guarantees that every product meets strict requirements for craftsmanship, customer satisfaction, and durability. The factory is also certified according to ISO 14001, a globally recognised environmental standard that reflects a long-term commitment to sustainable production and reducing environmental impact.

The leather used in production complies with strict EU standards for chrome tanning and meets high demands for safety and quality. The outsoles used in Graninge's collection are primarily sourced from Vibram®, with a strong focus on grip, performance, and durability. The factory uses several types of PFAS free membranes in Graninge's boots and shoes.
